BOSTON COLLEGE POST-GRADUATION PLANS SURVEY CLASS OF 2014

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The purpose of the Boston College Post-Graduation Plans Survey is to track recent graduates' future plans via topics such as their primary activity six months post-graduation, top career fields, the timing of offers and starting salary information, graduate school enrollment by program, degree, and institution, and the organizations where recent graduates choose to volunteer, among other areas.

Serving as partners in this data collection effort, the Career Center and Institutional Research, Planning & Assessment have utilized a variety of resources to supplement information gathered via the traditional survey administration process, the result being a set of information collected from graduating seniors that provides valuable data for faculty, administrators, and employers to better serve students in their career-planning activities.

Survey administration and data collection

- The survey was administered online from March 2014 through October 2014 to all members of the undergraduate Class of 2014.
- Data from LinkedIn, The National Student Clearinghouse, along with internal Boston College sources (e.g., Athletics and the Office of News & Public Affairs) were assembled to supplement survey data.
- Input was collected for 1,821 students (80% of the total Class of 2014).

Survey highlights

- Nine out of 10 (95.7%) of those responding to the Class of 2014 Post-Graduation Plans Survey indicate that they are employed (either working full-time for pay, interning, volunteering, or engaged in a fellowship) or are attending graduate school.
- The median salary reported by members of the Class of 2014 is $55,000 with the middle 50% of students reporting salaries between $41,000 and $63,000.
- A broad range of fields are represented for those respondents who are employed and include areas such as finance, banking, education, healthcare, computer science, government, legal services, and entertainment.

- While many students reported employment in the Northeast, all areas of the United States were represented as well as a variety of international destinations such as France, Brazil, Cambodia, China, Hong Kong, Japan, Portugal, South Korea, Switzerland, Canada, and United Arab Emirates.
- Students utilized a variety of methods to secure their positions, such as networking (20%) and interning (17%) however EagleLink on-campus interviews were cited by over a quarter of students as the primary resource used to obtain their current post.
- A primary factor reported by 70% of students was that a “genuine interest in the field” was most influential to the shaping of their post-graduate activities. Likely contributors to this planning process were students’ experiences while at Boston College which included interning (71%), volunteering (68%) and studying abroad (52%).
- More than one-fifth (21%) of survey respondents indicated that they are pursuing a graduate degree as their primary activity after graduation; 2.7% are enrolled in part-time graduate study.
- Among recent graduates pursuing advanced degrees, almost one-fifth (18.3%) are pursuing education degrees and almost another fifth (17.3%) are pursuing law degrees.
- For those students who are volunteering after their graduation from BC, close to a third are serving with the Jesuit Volunteer Corps; a host of other service organizations, both domestic and international, are also represented by Class of 2014 members.
- Overall five year trends demonstrate a steady increase in the number of students pursuing employment after graduation. That is, for the Class of 2010, 56% reported “working full-time” after graduation versus 65% for the Class of 2014; conversely, 28% of the Class of 2010 noted “attending graduate school” as their activity post-BC, compared to 21% for the Class of 2014.

RESPONSE RATES BY SOURCE AND SCHOOL

Data were collected for 80% of the Class of 2014 (i.e., 1,821 students); 62.7% of the Class of 2014 responded to the online survey, while data were collected for 17.3% of the Class of 2014 from alternative methods, such as LinkedIn, The National Student Clearinghouse, or internal sources.

Table 1: Information Sources

Survey	1428	78.4%	62.7%

PRIMARY ACTIVITY SIX MONTHS FOLLOWING GRADUATION

For the Class of 2014, 95.7% indicate that they are working full-time, attending graduate school, volunteering, or engaging in a fellowship or post-graduation internship; the distribution of post-graduation status, however, varies substantially among colleges. A total of 65.4% of respondents report that they are working full-time. CSON graduates are the most likely to be working for pay (93.0%), followed closely by CSOM graduates (86.6%). Almost one-quarter of A&S and nearly half of LSOE graduates are attending graduate school and 4.3% of A&S and 5.4% LSOE graduates report that they are volunteering.

Chart 1: Primary Activity

Trends, Primary Activity

The percent of graduates working full-time has steadily increased over the past five years. The percent attending graduate school has decreased about 2% from 2011-2012 levels, but has increased slightly compared to results for the Class of 2013. The percent of graduates participating in a post-graduate internship has increased minimally at roughly one percent over the last several years.

ACTIVITIES PURSUED WHILE AT BC

The broad range of activities Class of 2014 members participated in during the course of their undergraduate experience helped to provide direction as to their post-graduate plans. Over half of 2014 graduates completed an internship (70.7%), engaged in community service (68.0%), and/or participated in a study abroad program (51.8%) while enrolled at BC. Noteworthy is that nearly eight out of ten students (79.5%) participated in two or more of the listed activities.

TOP FACTORS INFLUENCING PLANS

In addition to the activities in which members of the Class of 2014 participated in, other factors influential to students' post-grad plans were also cited. The number one factor reported by over half (68.5%) of students was "a genuine interest in the field", followed by their perception that "time in the role will lead to a promising career" (59.4%). Personal relationships were also noted as being influential to their decision-making process.

PRIMARY RESOURCES USED TO OBTAIN CURRENT POSITION

About forty-one percent of the respondents who are working full-time indicated that they found their position through on-campus interviewing or other Career Center programs. This represents a slight decrease, yet is essentially comparable to, the Class of 2013 (43%), along with earlier years: from 2009 to 2012 between 35-48% of seniors found their positions via on-campus interviewing and/or Career Center programs. The percent who noted networking or internships as their primary resource was 36%, comparable to the Class of 2013 and 2012.

MEDIAN STARTING SALARIES BY SCHOOL

For seniors who provided their post-graduation information via the survey, salary information was provided by 90.1% of students who had accepted a job offer. Reported salaries ranged from $41,000 at the 25th percentile to $63,000 at the 75th percentile, with a median salary for all responding students of $55,000. These values have remained fairly steady since 2011.

GEOGRAPHIC LOCATION OF EMPLOYED GRADUATES

While the majority reported employment in the Northeast, all areas of the United States were represented by survey respondents. A decrease in international destinations was noted, with graduates citing employment in France, Brazil, Cambodia, China, Hong Kong, Japan, Portugal, South Korea, Switzerland, Canada, and United Arab Emirates.

GRADUATE SCHOOL ENROLLMENT BY PROGRAM/DEGREE TYPE

Approximately one-fifth (21%) of the Class of 2014 are expected to pursue graduate degrees as their primary activity after graduation. In addition, 2.7% of survey respondents report enrolling in graduate school, but not as their primary activity (e.g., part-time). Table 17 presents data for students pursuing a graduate degree as their primary activity; of the respondents reporting a degree program, about one-fifth are pursuing law degrees (17.3%) and another one-fifth are pursuing education degrees (18.3%).

SUMMARY

The percent of Boston College graduates who are working full time has been gradually increasing over the past three years, from 55.9% in 2010 to 65.4% in 2014. The percent enrolling in graduate school peaked at 28.1% in 2010 and has gradually decreased since then, although this year saw an increase in students attending graduate school full time, 21%, up from 17.2% in 2013. It will be interesting to monitor the results for future classes to assess whether these trends continue.
